

Dear Coniston Campers,

I do not want you to feel upset when a staff member says no to sharing personal information on the Internet. Just like when you are at camp, JD and I expect Counselors private space to remain private.

We encourage the strong friendships that you form here in the summer. But our staff members need to have some of their lives away from camp. This helps keep all of our relationships in an appropriate and safe place.

After looking at many of your profiles, you should remember that the Web is public. You are not just sharing information with your friends, you are sharing it with anyone who looks for you OR one of your friends.

JD and I found many of you just as easily as you found the staff. Please be careful what you say about yourself and your friends.

I hope this helps you understand. If you have more questions feel free to contact me.

Thanks,

John Tilley
