SUMMER CAMP ANNUAL

FOR YOUTH DEVELOPMENT
FOR HEALTHY LIVING
FOR SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

It is hard to believe that 2014 was my 15th summer at Coniston.

Over my time here, I've noticed that camp is a place where time marches on but the experience stays the same. This isn't because camp doesn't change—it changes all the time. People come and go, programs are created and ended, and sometimes buildings are built and occasionally demolished. Yet, I think the thing that changes most at camp is the people.

Think back to the first time you were a camper. You learned to make decisions for yourself, without the help of your parents. You learned to live with others and settle small problems. Many of us became a little more daring as we taught ourselves new things. It's no wonder that parents say we came home from camp different.

But we returned. We returned to see our friends and experience the freedom we feel only at camp. Slowly, lessons we learn at Coniston are applied to our own personalities outside camp. Maybe it's an athlete who becomes interested in theater. Perhaps it's a quiet person who learns to use humor in social situations.

Finally you join staff. It's your first job and you are not just in charge of a cabin—you help train and lead a group of staff. You assist in administering this small town of 500 people around the clock. You learn more about management in one summer than any internship could allow.

This is your story. This is camp's story. The story never changes—we do.

I can't wait to see what the next 15 summers will bring.
